Bathing Costumes Are Most Grotesque.

MISS NEPTUNE IN NAVY BLUE TAFFETA.

That the summer season of 1913 has witnessed a more grotesque and bizarre assortment of bathing costumes than any season previous cannot for a minute be doubted. One brief glimpse of the modes will serve to convince.

A group of modish bathing costumes presents a startling riot of color and a most interesting adaptation of the unique fashion features that have dominated the season's styles.

Navy blue taffeta is combined in the bathing suit illustrated, with amethyst silk trimming for collar, cuffs and straps down the front panel of blouse and skirt. Diamond shaped figures in briquet red outlined with white are a striking note on the silk trimming. A blue silk cap with flat crushed bow of blue and white striped silk completes this costume.

A suit more conservative, but not less decorative from a trimming standpoint, is of navy blue taffeta with pin stripe of emerald green. The collar and cuffs of this suit are comprised of black and white ratine in a large broken plaid, and the front of the costume is trimmed in panel effect with small green crystal buttons.

Caps, bonnets, shoes and parasols, as well as hand bags and corsage bouquets of rubber flowers, are not the least significant of the details of the bathing costume. These accessories each match the trimming in color. Slippers for bathing are fashioned of ribbed silk in bright colors and in two toned effects. Visored caps and sun-bonnets are among the unique fancies for the beach headdress. A cap of bright red silk has a gay plaid silk facing in visor and a band of the silk about the crown. Over a bath cap of Nell rose silk is worn a soft outing hat shape, the lining of the plain rose silk and the top of crown and brim of Bulgarian silk.

Headaches and Neuralgia.

Too much exertion in the hot weather and going too long without food, as one is tempted to, bring on headache and neuralgia, especially in the case of women. Neuralgia is often due, too, to debility. In that case a tonic is the best cure. For this it is safer to get a prescription from your own doctor, as a tonic that suits one person may do harm to another. For an ordinary headache bathe the temples and the back of the neck with water as hot as you can bear it. A little vinegar or eau de Cologne added to the water makes it even more refreshing. Continue bathing for ten minutes, then dry face and neck, let down your hair, drink half a glass of hot milk, slip on a loose dressing gown and lie down for half an hour in a darkened room, and after you have slowly dressed you should feel quite well again.

Here's a Latest Drink—Try "Eleanor Mint."

Miss Eleanor Wilson, youngest daughter of the president, has evolved the new drink known by her name. Use the following:

Three fingers of chocolate syrup.
A dash of mint.
A filler of charged water.
A block of bisque glace.
A double portion of whipped cream.
A sprinkle of chopped nuts.
Maraschino cherries.
